

Movies

- 1) When a person on the autistic spectrum watches a movie of any kind, each one of us most probably perceives it differently to each other and differently to others who are not on the spectrum.
- 2) With watching a film or a television programme, I myself enjoy the visual objects in the picture because they are the main things that paint the story.
- 3) This is why I don't like subtitles, because when reading them I miss the backdrops or what is going on in the far distance.
- 4) Backgrounds and atmospheric scenes tell me just as much about the story in a movie besides the actual words.
- 5) Even with a spoken dialogue in a language that I can understand, I can miss the subtly, although I can still understand a movie differently.
