

Visual

- 1) Being visual is one of the qualities of autism because for us, a picture paints a thousand words.
- 2) Anything visual such as colours or a movement display can provide therapy where we feel comfort as well as understanding.
- 3) Light can also determine a person with autism's well being because light is the vital thing that shows us what we see, but its not just what we see, its also how we see in the light things as they are.
- 4) Methodicalness can be another liking for a person with autism because it shows us clarity where things don't look threatening or chaotic.
- 5) For a person with autism, words can also be visual because words can be displayed as well as written and in a piece of writing, text can also paint a picture.
